The COVID-19 pandemic has brought many long-standing inequities to light across our nation. Specifically for low-income students and students of color, online learning has revealed the disproportionate learning challenges they face. The California Community Foundation and The Los Angeles Community Foundation have dedicated $300 million to catalyze new public-private partnerships to respond to these challenges.

Families In Schools (FIS) is set to launch Passport to Success – College and Career Readiness Edition from July 13 to September 4. This summer campaign has been created to reduce summer learning loss by encouraging students and families to participate in learning activities, take virtual tours of colleges and attend virtual Q&A events. FIS will award five $1,000 scholarships to California students in grades 5-12. Three of the five scholarships will be awarded to students in LA County.
